Jill Bergman, Chair

The Department of English is among the oldest and most prestigious units at the University. As one of the campus's original departments, it offered some of the university's inaugural courses: literature classes taught by UM's first president, Oscar J. Craig. In 1919, Rhodes Scholar H.G. Merriam inaugurated one of the first creative writing programs in the country. Now, more than a century old, this department—which has employed writers and scholars such as Richard Hugo, Leslie Fiedler, William Kittredge and Patricia Goedicke—offers a B.A. with options in multiple disciplines and three graduate degrees in creative writing (M.F.A.), literature (M.A.), and teaching (M.A.T.).

On the undergraduate level, the department offers five options for English majors: 1) Literature; 2) Creative Writing; 3) English Teaching; 4) Film studies; and 5) Linguistics. In addition, students may pursue a general minor in English or minors in Film Studies, English Teaching and Irish Studies. Students can also study expository writing, linguistics and Teaching English as a Second Language.

Under the Literature option, students ground their study in the reading and examination of works through a series of historically based surveys as well as other core courses, covering the techniques of literary analysis, the application of literary theory, and finally the development of a research project in a senior seminar. Students also choose from electives that engage specific genres, authors, and periods, as well as different disciplines (e.g. Literature and the Environment) and literatures of diversity (e.g. Native American Literature). M.A. students select graduate seminars in American, British, and comparative literatures as well as other disciplines, their course work culminating in a research thesis. The literature emphasis imparts an understanding of not only the aesthetic richness of canonical and emerging literatures but also the historical and cultural forces that have contributed to their making. The classes are of a size that makes discussion very much a part of a student's experience.

The Creative Writing program is predicated on the model of the workshop, and focuses on three areas of study: poetry, fiction, and nonfiction. Undergraduates who select the creative writing option fulfill some of the same requirements as those in literature, while also participating in a series of small workshops at both the lower and upper division, gaining the techniques needed to craft poetry and/or prose that work towards artistic excellence. Graduate students pursuing an M.F.A. degree complete a series of writing workshops and seminars designed to develop their creative work and expand their understanding of literary technique. The Creative Writing program invites visiting writers to fill its Hugo and Kittredge fellowships, and also sponsors the graduate literary magazine CutBank, now in its fourth decade of publishing works, of poetry, fiction and art. Additionally, undergraduate students have the opportunity to contribute and edit their own literary magazine, The Oval.

The English Teaching program provides content knowledge, pedagogy, and professional experiences required for teaching literacy in a democratic society. Based on current research and best practices, the English Teaching program integrates the study of language, literature, and media, creating learning communities and supporting teachers as critical thinkers, creative problem solvers, and reflective practitioners. Students who successfully complete this option and the requirements from the School of Education receive a secondary teaching license (grades 5-12) in English. At the graduate level, the English Teaching program offers advanced theory and pedagogy courses for experienced teachers. The English Teaching Program is also the home of the Montana Writing Project, which is dedicated to improving the teaching and learning of writing at all grade levels.

In Film Studies, students receive a thorough introduction to the many facets of moving image culture, including a background in film history, theory, and aesthetics. In this interdisciplinary program, students are exposed to a broad array of national and international films, as well as filmic translations of well-known works of literature. Students analyze film from a variety of theoretical perspectives and become critical viewers of what is now one of the most predominant forms of cultural representation.

In conjunction with the Linguistics Program, English also offers an option in English Linguistics. Students select one of two tracks: 1) General Linguistics, which provides a background in both literature and linguistics, or 2) Teaching English as a Second Language, which prepares students for the particular concerns of second-language acquisition while also providing a foundation in the study of literature.

The Department of English also offers an interdisciplinary minor in Irish Studies which provides students with access to instruction in the fields of Irish language, history, literature, and culture. This academic and artistic approach to Irish culture involves an interdisciplinary and inter-collegiate collaboration that brings together leading scholars in the humanities and the creative arts.

Through the administration of one of the core competency requirements of the University's General Education curriculum, the Expository Writing or Composition program serves the entire student body by ensuring that all students learn to write with clarity of thought and precision of language. Writing is understood as a skill, one that is improved by instructing students in the concerns of audience, organization, development, voice, diction, and grammar. Good writing also is related to cogent thinking, and the Expository Writing program—through both its general education requirement and its advanced courses—seeks to integrate critical thinking within the production of skilled writing.

Admission Requirements

To be admitted to any option of the English major, a student must satisfy the following requirements:

1. Completion of 24 credits overall with a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.5 or a GPA of 2.5 in the previous two terms.

2. Completion of at least nine credits in English, excluding WRIT (composition) courses, with a minimum GPA of 2.5 and no grade lower than a C (2.00) in those courses.

Students who intend to major in English, but who have not yet met the above requirements are admitted to the program as pre-English majors. Pre-English majors will be assigned to the English department Academic Advisor. Before a student can graduate with a major in English, she/he must meet the requirements to become an English major and declare a specific option within the program.

Special Degree Requirements

For University graduation requirements, please consult Academic Policy and Procedures: Degree/Certification Requirement for Graduation in this catalog.

For the Bachelor of Arts degree every major in English will complete the following requirements unless otherwise noted within the option:

Majors in English may not take any course required for the English major on a credit/no credit basis.
